The background of the slide is a photograph of the Parthenon on the Acropolis in Athens. The temple is shown from a low angle, emphasizing its height and the grandeur of its Doric columns. The sky is a clear, deep blue. The temple's facade is made of light-colored marble, with some visible weathering and missing sections. The columns are fluted and have papyrus capitals. The pediment above the columns is also visible, showing some relief carvings.

LEARN MORE

Participants will discuss their views and current findings, leading to a unique opportunity for all those with an interest in the future of shipping to exchange ideas and network with this pioneering community of maritime professionals. The focus will be based on the technological, regulatory and legal developments necessary to make autonomous and unmanned ships a reality.

The event will look at the issues involved with increasing autonomy in shipping with an introduction to the concept, an in depth look at developments, the technology currently present and what's in the future, safety and assurance of vessels, what changes mean for fleet owners, what are the legal and insurance implications and of course the human element.

There will be a mixture of presentations, roundtable discussions and panel debates from leading experts from the shipping industry worldwide including fleet owners, naval architects, designers, manufacturers, operators, harbour authorities and maritime research organisations.

The Exchange is a unique round table event where attendees are invited to sit at thematic tables of their choice.

Delegates can choose to be seated at different tables throughout the day e.g. Maritime Insurance, Shipping, Environmental, Navigational Technology, Research & Development or Piracy and Security.

Keynote speakers are welcomed to the stage throughout the day whilst a host is appointed for each table where they are able to showcase their company through branding and discussion.

Presentations last for 20 minutes, and after every 3rd presentation there is a reactionary session during which each table discuss the presentations – it is a great way to deliver a clear and concise message to fellow delegates whilst offering an ideal opportunity to amass the knowledge of an international network of leaders and experts.
